your questions answered

How are wall panels made?

Mermaid panels are manufactured in the UK and have been proven in use over many years as being suitable for use in wet areas. In addition to being attractive and easy to maintain, they also offer many other advantages to the installer and consumers alike.

Mermaid panels are made of 9mm water-resistant WBP plywood. This is bonded with a decorative high pressure laminate which results in a 100% waterproof surface. There is also a balancer laminate to the reverse.

Are they easy to install?

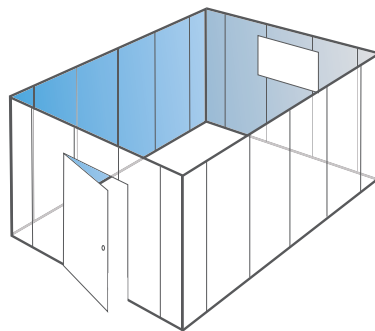

A specialist fitter isn't required. Mermaid panels can be installed by a competent trades person.

Large wall surfaces can be covered in a fraction of the time it would take to tile the same area. All of the Mermaid panels are manufactured in three sizes, except for the Mists which are only available as 1200mm-wide panels. They are supplied as easy-to-order kits, including all the required profiles, colour sealants and accessories.

- Bathroom panels 2400mm x 600mm (nominal)
For full room installations or walls greater than 1200mm in length
- Hi-ShowerWall 2400mm x 900mm
For shower installations where the wall is less than or equal to 900mm
- Wide ShowerWall 2400mm x 1200mm
For shower installations where the wall is less than or equal to 1200mm

Important note: laminate face width 585mm*

Mermaid 600mm-wide bathroom panels can be used for full room installations. Ideally this should be planned to ensure that the joins between the panels are symmetrical, particularly around windows and doors.

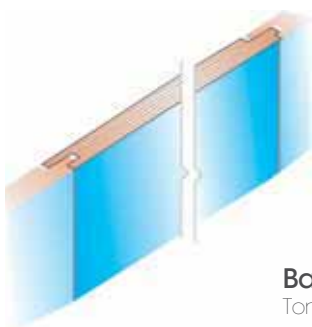

Mermaid panels can be used for two- or three-sided shower enclosures.

Is preparation required?

The panels are easy to fit to most types of bathroom wall, including studwork and even over the top of existing ceramic tiles. Whatever the surface, it is important that the walls are flat, reasonably square and provide a suitable fixing for screws and plugs. It is also recommended to use multi-purpose adhesive when installing Hi-ShowerWall and Wide ShowerWall panels.

The materials used in the construction of wall panels mean that normal woodworking tools can be used for the installation. This also means that no problems should occur when drilling to fix mirrors or other bathroom fittings.

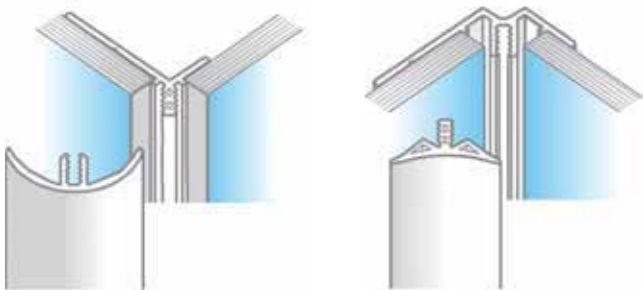

Bathroom Panels

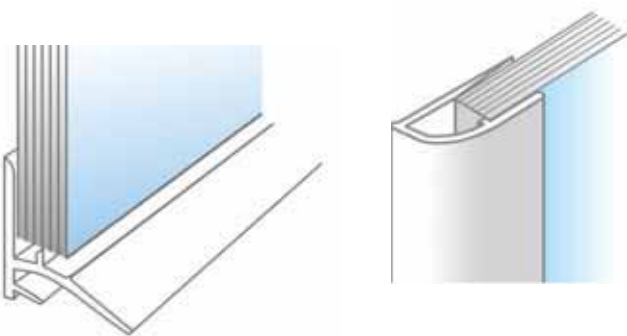

Tongue and grooved panel edges (only available on 600mm boards) eliminate the need for joining strips and mean that fixings can be neatly concealed.

What else helps to make the panels watertight?

The internal and external corner profiles on Mermaid panels are a unique two-part CLICK+SEAL profile system, which doesn't require a sealant. The design incorporates a PVC section on the rear and colour-coordinated PVC or polished chrome aluminium face. The two parts simply click together and a self-adhesive barrier tape creates a watertight join.

Conventional tile installations often result in leaks as the seal between the bath or shower tray and wall breaks down over time. The Mermaid bottom seal system accommodates movement, to ensure that this doesn't happen. The patented profile and special formulation sealant allow shower trays to drop by up to 10mm and still remain watertight.

Are they easy to maintain?

Panels are easy to clean and just need wiping with a damp cloth so that they look as good as new. Unlike wallpaper or paint, which can peel or flake, and tiles, which can crack or chip, panels are durable and as long as cared for correctly they will last for many years.

How are they supplied?

Mermaid wall panels are available in over 40 colours, so there is something to suit everyone. They are supplied as complete kits with comprehensive fixing guidelines. The edging and corner profiles are colour-coordinated to create a professional finish. You can also upgrade to polished aluminium if desired. White bottom seal profiles are supplied as standard.

A Home Owner Care pack is supplied with Mermaid corner and wall panel kits. This includes an E-cloth, squeegee and instructions on how to keep your panels in pristine condition. These packs can also be purchased separately with non-kit Mermaid orders.
